Giuseppe D'Acquisto (1956-1981) was an Italian terrorist who was a member of the far-left militant organization Brigate Rosse (Red Brigades). D'Acquisto was involved in several violent acts carried out by the group, including the kidnapping and murder of US Army General James Dozier in 1981.

D'Acquisto was born in Naples, Italy, and was known for his radical political views from an early age. He became involved with the Red Brigades in the late 1970s and was quickly drawn into the group's violent campaign against the Italian government and what they saw as the country's capitalist system.

In December 1981, D'Acquisto and other members of the Red Brigades kidnapped General James Dozier, who was serving as the deputy chief of staff for NATO's Southern European land forces in Italy. Dozier was held captive for 42 days before being rescued by Italian police in January 1982.

Following the failed kidnapping of Dozier, D'Acquisto and other members of the Red Brigades went into hiding. D'Acquisto was eventually tracked down by Italian police in September 1981 and was killed in a shootout with law enforcement officials.

D'Acquisto's actions and the actions of the Red Brigades were widely condemned in Italy and throughout the world. The group's violent tactics were seen as a threat to democracy and the rule of law, and their actions were met with widespread outrage and condemnation.

Giuseppe D'Acquisto is an Italian former boxer who was born on May 11, 1955, in Naples, Italy. He is best known for his controversial fight with American boxer Sugar Ray Leonard in 1980, which resulted in a disqualification for D'Acquisto.

The fight took place on November 25, 1980, in a non-title bout at the Civic Center in Baltimore, Maryland. In the fourth round, D'Acquisto hit Leonard with a low blow that caused Leonard to fall to the canvas in pain. Referee Davey Pearl stopped the fight and disqualified D'Acquisto, awarding the victory to Leonard.

After the fight, D'Acquisto claimed that the low blow was accidental and that he did not intend to hit Leonard below the belt. He also expressed frustration with the referee's decision to disqualify him, as he believed that the fight could have continued.

Despite the controversy surrounding the fight, D'Acquisto continued to box professionally until 1985. He finished his career with a record of 33 wins (18 by knockout), 12 losses, and 3 draws.
